Dr. Saad's Background & Experience

Born and raised in Dearborn, Michigan, Dr. Abdulhassan Saad has a passion for making healthcare accessible to underserved communities. After completing his residency at the William Beaumont School of Medicine, Dr. Saad worked in a hospital for two years before deciding to open a primary care practice in his hometown of Dearborn.

Dr. Saad is a triple board-certified physician specializing in Internal Medicine, Obesity Medicine, COVID-19, and Addiction Medicine. In addition to providing primary care services at his full-service practice, Dr. Saad also specializes in addiction treatment and management. His expertise in Internal Medicine alone makes him an integral part of our Principal Investigators network at Revival Research Institute. Dr. Saad oversees Phase 2, 3, and 4 clinical trials focused on COVID-19 and various other Internal Medicine indications, including Obesity Medicine.

Clinical Research and Community Impact

Dr. Saad has been closely involved in clinical research, partnering with Revival Research Institute since 2016. During the COVID-19 pandemic, his site became a top national recruiter for multiple COVID-19 clinical trials, demonstrating his commitment to advancing medical knowledge and patient care. His facility is fully equipped to conduct clinical trials and is staffed by highly trained personnel, including two full-time clinical coordinators and a laboratory technician. Dr. Saad's dedication to both his private practice and research site is driven by a passion for improving health outcomes in his local community — whether through comprehensive primary care, addiction treatment, or clinical research.
